The Keeper of Lost Things

Ruth Hogan

Once a celebrated author of short stories now in his twilight years, Anthony Peardeew has spent half his life collecting lost objects, to atone for a promise broken years before. Realising he is running out of time, he leaves his house and all its lost treasures to his assistant Laura, the one person he can trust to fulfil his legacy and reunite the thousands of objects with their owners. But his final wishes have unforeseen repercussions which trigger a serendipitous series of encounters...

Eleanor Oliphant is Completely Fine

Gail Honeyman

Eleanor Oliphant leads a simple life. She wears the same clothes to work, eats the same meal deal for lunch every day and buys the same two bottles of vodka to drink every weekend. She is happy. Nothing is missing from her timetabled life. Except, sometimes, everything. One simple act of kindness is about to shatter the walls Eleanor has built. Now she must learn to navigate the world that everyone else seems to take for granted – while searching for the courage to face the dark corners she's avoided all her life. Change can be good. Change can be bad. But surely any change is better than... fine?

Three Things About Elsie

Joanna Cannon

84-year-old Florence has fallen in her flat at Cherry Tree Home for the Elderly. As she waits to be rescued, she considers the charming new resident who looks exactly like a man she once knew – a man who died sixty years ago. His arrival has stirred distant memories she and Elsie thought they'd laid to rest. Lying in the front room, Florence wonders if a bad secret from her past is about to come to light ...

Six Foot Six

Kit de Waal

It's an exciting day for Timothy Flowers. It's the third of November, and it's his twenty-first birthday. When Timothy walks to his usual street corner to see his favourite special bus, he meets Charlie. Charlie is a builder who needs Timothy's help because Timothy is very tall, six feet six inches. Timothy has never had a job before. But when Timothy and Charlie have to collect money from a local thug, things don't exactly go according to plan. Over the course of one day, Timothy's life will change for ever.

Dear Mrs Bird

AJ Pearce

London, 1941. Emmeline Lake is trying to stay cheerful despite the Luftwaffe making life annoying. She dreams of becoming a Lady War Correspondent and when she spots a job advert in the newspaper she seizes her chance – but after a misunderstanding, she finds herself typing letters for the formidable Henrietta Bird, the renowned agony aunt of Woman's Friend magazine. Mrs Bird is very clear: letters containing any form of Unpleasantness must go in the bin. But as Emmy reads the pleas from women who have Gone Too Far with the wrong man, or can't bear to let their children be evacuated, she decides to secretly write back. This is a love letter to the power of friendship, the kindness of strangers and the courage of ordinary people in extraordinary times.

Espedair Street

Iain Banks

Daniel Weir used to be a famous - or infamous - rock star. Maybe still is. At thirty-one he's made mistakes that have paid off and smart moves he regrets. He has gone from rags to riches and back, but has not much else. His friends are all dead, fed up with him or just disgusted. And now Daniel is all alone. As he contemplates his life, he sees only two problems: the past and the future. He knows how bad the past has been. But the future is something else.

Crazy Rich Asians

Kevin Kwan

When Rachel Chu agrees to spend the summer in Singapore with her boyfriend, Nicholas Young, she envisions a humble family home and time with the man she might one day marry. What she doesn't know is that Nick's family home looks like a palace, that she'll ride in more private planes than cars and that she is about to encounter the strangest, craziest group of people in existence. Uproarious and filled with jaw-dropping opulence, this is an insider's look at the Asian jet set.

---

Sour Heart

Jenny Zhang

Centred on a community of immigrants on the edge of poverty in 1990s New York, these stories examine the ways that family and history can weigh us down, but also lift us up. From the woman coming to terms with her grandmother's role in the Cultural Revolution, to the daughter struggling to understand where her family ends and she begins.

Hyperbole and a Half

Allie Brosh

A blog written by a 20-something American girl, with funny, wise stories about the mishaps of her life. Brosh's website receives millions of visitors a month. Now her book tells the "learning experiences" she has endured as a result of her character flaws. Including stories about her childhood; her mentally challenged dog; and a moving account of her struggle with depression.

I'm Still Here

Clélie Avit

Elsa has been in a coma for five months. With all hope of reviving her gone, her family must face the fact that it might be time to turn off her life support. What they don't know is that in the past few weeks Elsa has regained partial consciousness - she just has no way of telling them. Thibault is in the same hospital visiting his brother and, seeking a retreat, goes into Elsa's room. When he begins to talk to her, he doesn't realise she can hear every word - and that he is giving her a reason to wake up. And so begins a love story that might just save both their lives...

Carrying Albert Home: The Somewhat True Story of a Man, His Wife and Her Alligator

Homer Hickam

A journey of a thousand miles. With an alligator on the back seat. And John Steinbeck as a passenger. In 1930s America, the Depression made horizons smaller, and Elsie found herself back where she began, in the coalfields of West Virginia. She had one memento of her halcyon days – an alligator named Albert. One day, her husband's patience snapped and Elsie had to choose between Homer and Albert. She decided to carry Albert home to Florida. And so began their journey like no other, where they met everything from movie stars and revolutionaries to Hemingway and hurricanes in the struggle to find love, redemption, and a home.

The Reader on the 6.27

Jean-Paul Didierlaurent

Guylain Vignolles lives on the edge of existence. Working at a book pulping factory in a job he hates, he has but one pleasure in life. Sitting on the 6.27 train each day, Guylain recites aloud from pages he has saved from the jaws of his monstrous pulping machine. But it is when he discovers the diary of a lonely young woman, Julie - a woman who feels as lost in the world as he does - that his journey will truly begin.

Me Talk Pretty One Day

David Sedaris

The author's recent move to Paris from New York inspired these hilarious pieces, including his attempts to learn French from a sadistic teacher who declares that 'every day spent with you is like having a caesarean section'. His family is another inspiration, such as his brother, who talks incessant hip-hop slang to his bewildered father. Also included are responses to such modern annoyances as restaurant meals presented in ludicrous towers of food and cashiers with six-inch fingernails.

---

Smoke and Mirrors

Neil Gaiman

This definitive collection of the author's short fiction will haunt your imagination and move you to the very depths of your soul. An elderly widow finds the Holy Grail beneath an old fur coat. A stray cat fights a terrible nightly battle to protect his adoptive family from unimaginable evil. A young couple receives a wedding gift that reveals a chilling alternative history of their marriage.

Miss Garnet's Angel

Salley Vickers

Just retired, Julia is left a legacy which she uses to leave her orderly life and go to live in Venice. Its beauty, secret corners and treasures, and its people overwhelm a lifetime of reserve and caution. Above all, she is touched by the all-prevalent spirit of the Angel, Raphael. The ancient tale of Tobias, who travels to Medina unaware he is accompanied by the Angel, unfolds alongside Julia's journey.

Miss Pettigrew Lives for a Day

Winifred Watson

A genteel rags-to-possible-riches story first published in 1938.

Middle-aged spinster governess on her uppers goes for a job interview. She becomes entangled in the complex love life of her new employer. Within hours she's had a complete makeover and her first cocktail. A funny and light-hearted novel

Wonder

R.J. Palacio

Auggie wants to be an ordinary ten-year-old. He feels ordinary - inside. But ordinary kids don't make other ordinary kids run away screaming in playgrounds. Ordinary kids aren't stared at wherever they go. Born with a terrible facial abnormality, Auggie has been home-schooled by his parents his whole life. Now, he's being sent to a real school - and he's dreading it. All he wants is to be accepted - but can he convince his new classmates that he's just like them, underneath it all?

---

Hector and the Search for Happiness

Francois Lelord

Can we learn to be happy? Hector is a successful young psychiatrist. He's very good at treating patients in real need of his help. But many people he sees have no health problems: they're just deeply dissatisfied with their lives. Hector can't do much for them and it's beginning to depress him. So when a patient tells him he looks in need of a holiday, Hector decides to set off round the world to find out what makes people everywhere happy (and sad), and whether there is such a thing as the secret of true happiness.

The Help

Kathryn Stockett

Jackson, Mississippi, 1962. Where black maids raise white children, but aren't trusted. Aibileen is raising her seventeenth white child and nursing the hurt of her own son's death; Minny's cooking is as sassy as her tongue; and white Miss Skeeter, home from College, wants to know why her beloved maid has disappeared. No one would believe they'd be friends; fewer still would tolerate it. But, as each woman finds the courage to cross boundaries, they come to depend and rely upon one another.

Drawn by a love of books and the loss of partners, they contend with irate relatives and gossiping villagers. The perfect gentleman, but an unlikely hero, the Major must ask what matters most: family obligation, tradition or love?

Turned Out Nice Again

Richard Mabey

The author weaves together science, art and memoirs to show the weather's impact on our culture and national psyche. He rambles through the myths of Golden Summers, our denial about the Winter, herrings falling in Norfolk, Saharan dust reddening south coast cars and the fact that English has more words for rain than Inuit has for snow.

The Eyre Affair

Jasper Fforde

There is another 1885, somewhere, where the Crimean War still rages, dodos are cloned in kits and everyone is deeply disappointed by the ending of 'Jane Eyre'. There are no jetliners or computers, but there are policemen who time travel, a Welsh republic, a great interest in literature – and a woman called Thursday Next.

---

The President's Hat

Antoine Laurain

Dining alone in a Parisian brasserie, Daniel Mercier can't believe his eyes when President Mitterrand sits down at the next table.

Daniel's thrill at being so close persists after the presidential party has gone, when he discovers that Mitterrand's black felt hat has been left behind. Daniel decides to keep the hat as a souvenir of an extraordinary evening. It's a perfect fit, and as he leaves the restaurant Daniel begins to feel somehow different.

---

Various Pets Alive and Dead

Marina Lewycka

For twenty years Doro and Marcus lived in a commune, convinced lentils and free love would change the world. They didn't. What they did do was give their children a terror of radicalism, dirt, cooking rotas and poverty. Their daughter Clara wants nothing less than her own, clean bathroom. Their son, Serge hides the fact that he's a banker earning lots of money. So when Doro and Marcus spring a surprise on their kids – the family is forced to confront some thorny truths about themselves.

Tennyson's Gift

Lynne Truss

In July 1864, the Isle of Wight is buzzing with creativity. Tennyson is reciting 'Maud' to empty sofas; the photographer Julia Cameron is white-washing the roses for visual effect and the mismatched couple actress Ellen Terry and painter G. F. Watts, are thrown into the company of Lorenzo Fowler, the American phrenologist and his daughter, Jessie. Enter Charles Dodgson (aka Lewis Carroll), and the imaginative cocktail of Victorian seriousness and riotous farce takes flight.

---

Life According to Lubka

Laurie Graham
