How to Feel Better

Frances Goodhart and Lucy Atkins

In the past, it was understood that poor health takes its toll on emotions, relationships, morale and 'spirit'. Now, we neglect what scientific studies show is a vital element of recovery: the emotional side of getting better. As a result, many struggle with hidden issues such as depression, stress and anxiety long after a health crisis. This book centres on the research-based truth that 'getting better' is not just about the body - emotions play a huge part. Often, a person's emotional state is the one thing stopping them from a full recovery.

The Carer's Handbook

Jane Matthews

This indispensable guide aims to be a one-stop-shop for the huge percentage of the population who, now or later, find themselves in a caring role, whether that involves shopping for a housebound neighbour, or giving up work to care full-time for a disabled child or confused parent. This book will also help carers care for themselves. It looks at the difficult feelings that go hand in hand with caring, including how relationships are affected. There's guidance on what to do when a carer stops coping, and how to prepare emotionally and practically for the time when caring comes to an end.

The Selfish Pig's Guide to Caring: How to Cope with the Emotional and Practical Aspects of Caring for Someone

Hugh Marriott

Six million people in the UK, often unnoticed by the rest of us, provide unpaid care for disabled or elderly relatives, friends or neighbours. Their job is long, lonely and hard, yet there is limited support and no formal training. As a result, carers suffer frequent damage to physical and mental health. Oddly, though carers by definition are anything but selfish pigs, they are liable to feelings of guilt, probably brought on by fatigue and isolation. The author's aim is bring into the open everything he wishes he'd been told when he first became a carer. The book airs such topics as sex, thoughts of murder, and dealing with the responses of friends and officials who fail to understand.
